Kaveri woke up. There was a noise. She stepped out of her tent and walked around. She felt the sound was coming from the trees behind the tents. She switched on the torch that she had and looked around. She checked but she found nothing. She decided to go back. She realised that she had lost her way. Her heart started pounding. She walked and walked, but there were only trees and bushes. She reached an old mansion. She walked up the steps and knocked at the door. The door opened. The hinges groaned. A black cat jumped at her. Kaveri was scared. She cried.
